

EX LIBRIS

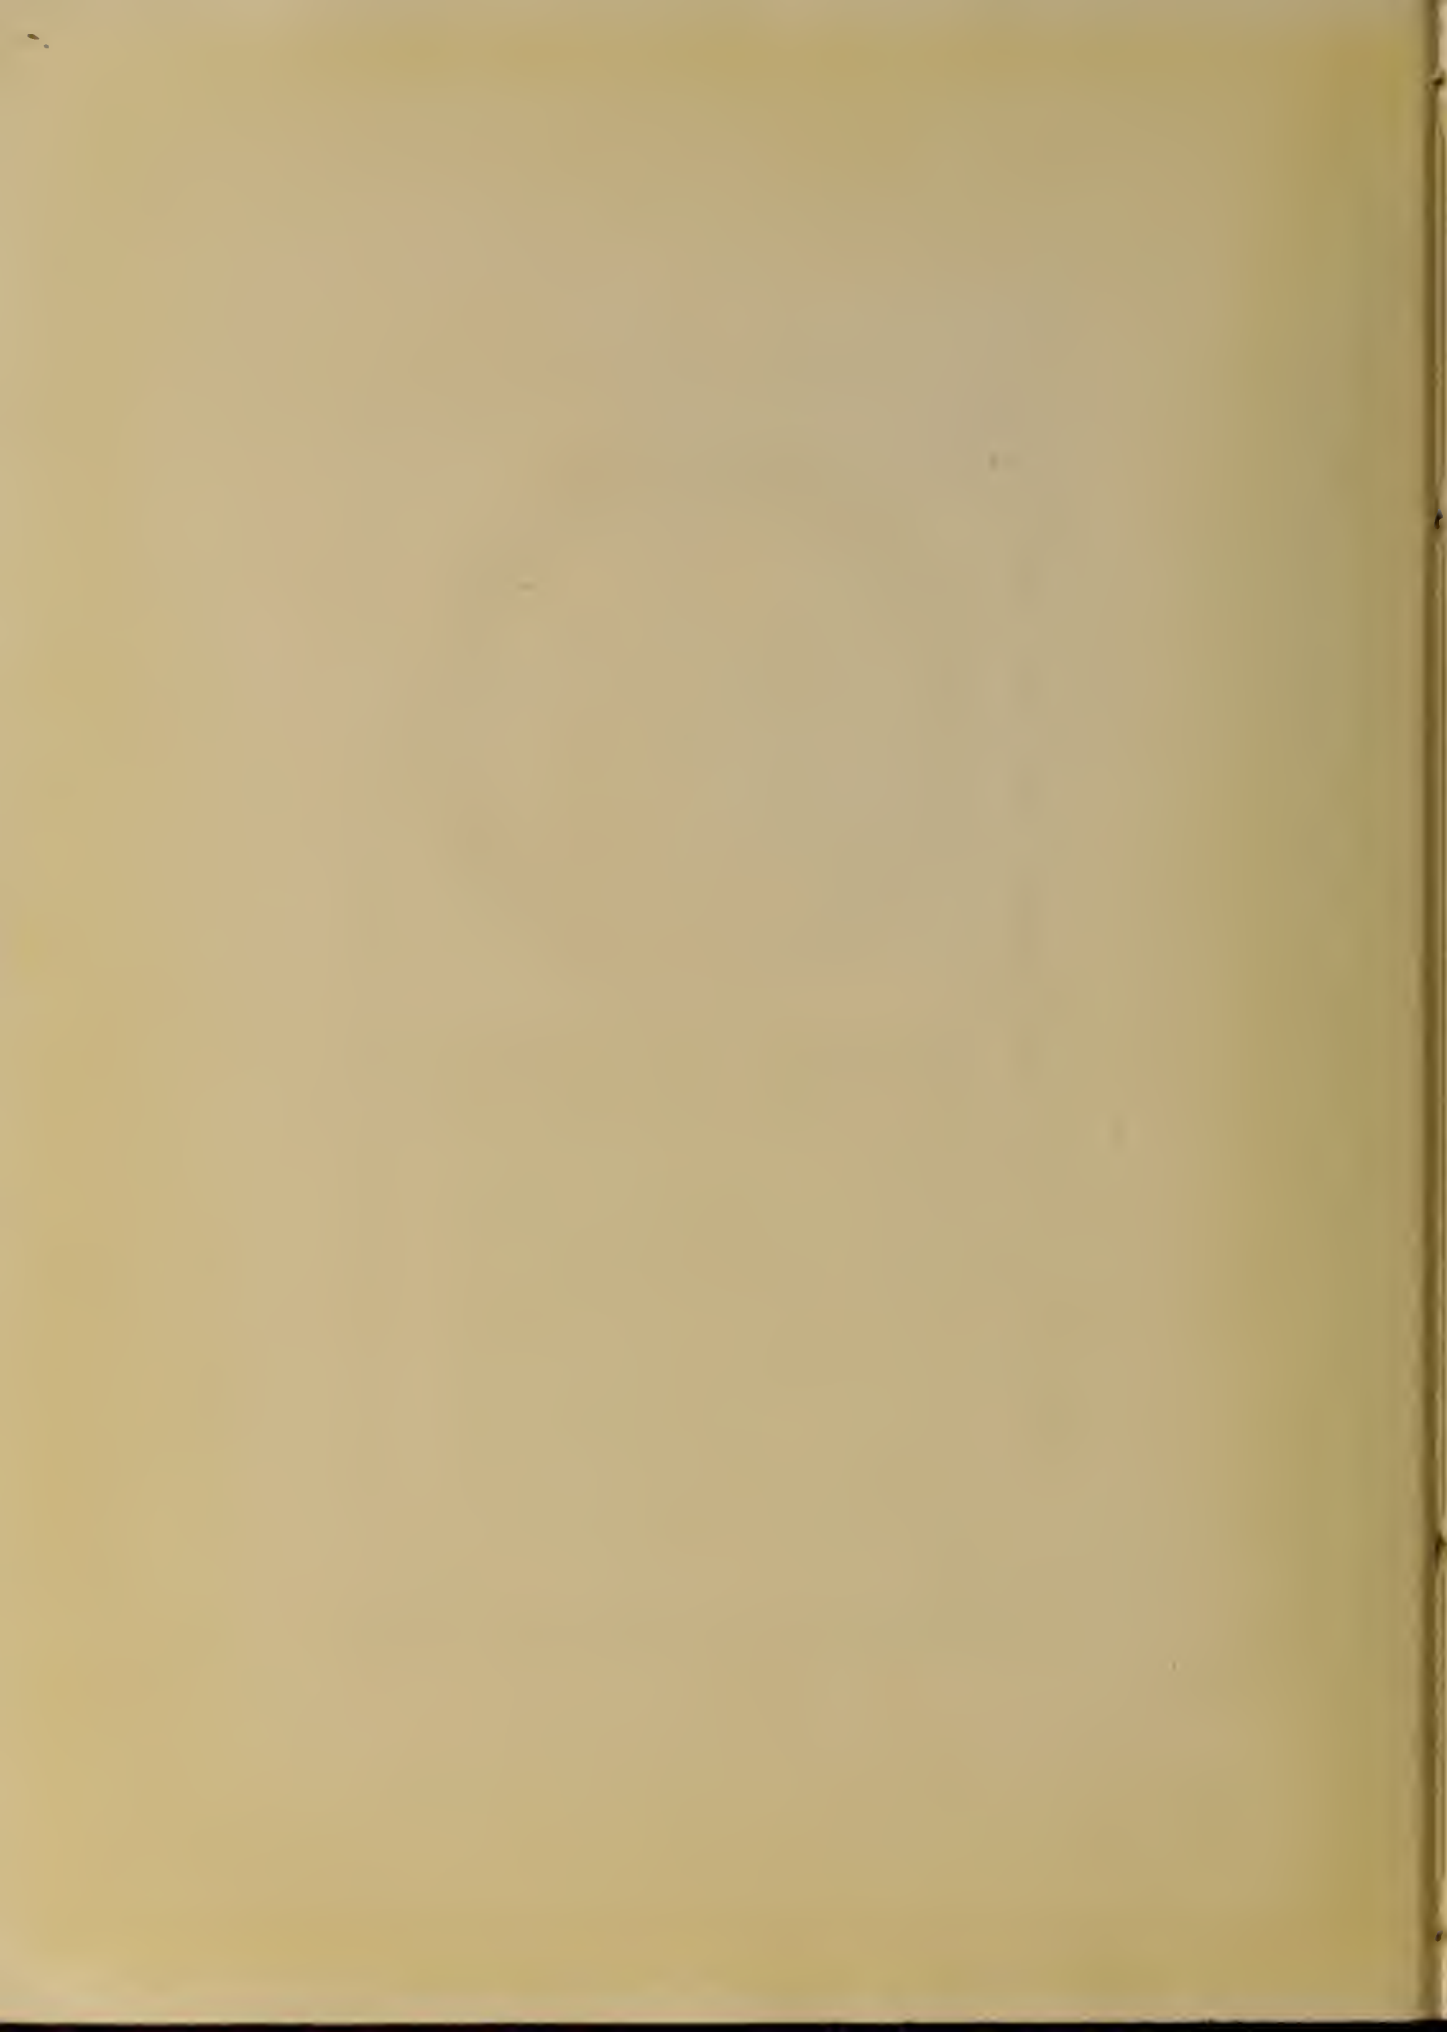

POTPOURRI
1924
*Published by the students of
Louisiana State
Normal College
Natchitoches, Louisiana.*

FOREWORD

It is the aim of this volume of the POTPOURRI to preserve within its pages a treasure-trove of memories that will be held dear to the hearts of all who leave these portals of learning. It is the wish of the staff that the influence of Alma Mater permeating this production, be carried onward through life by each outgoing class.

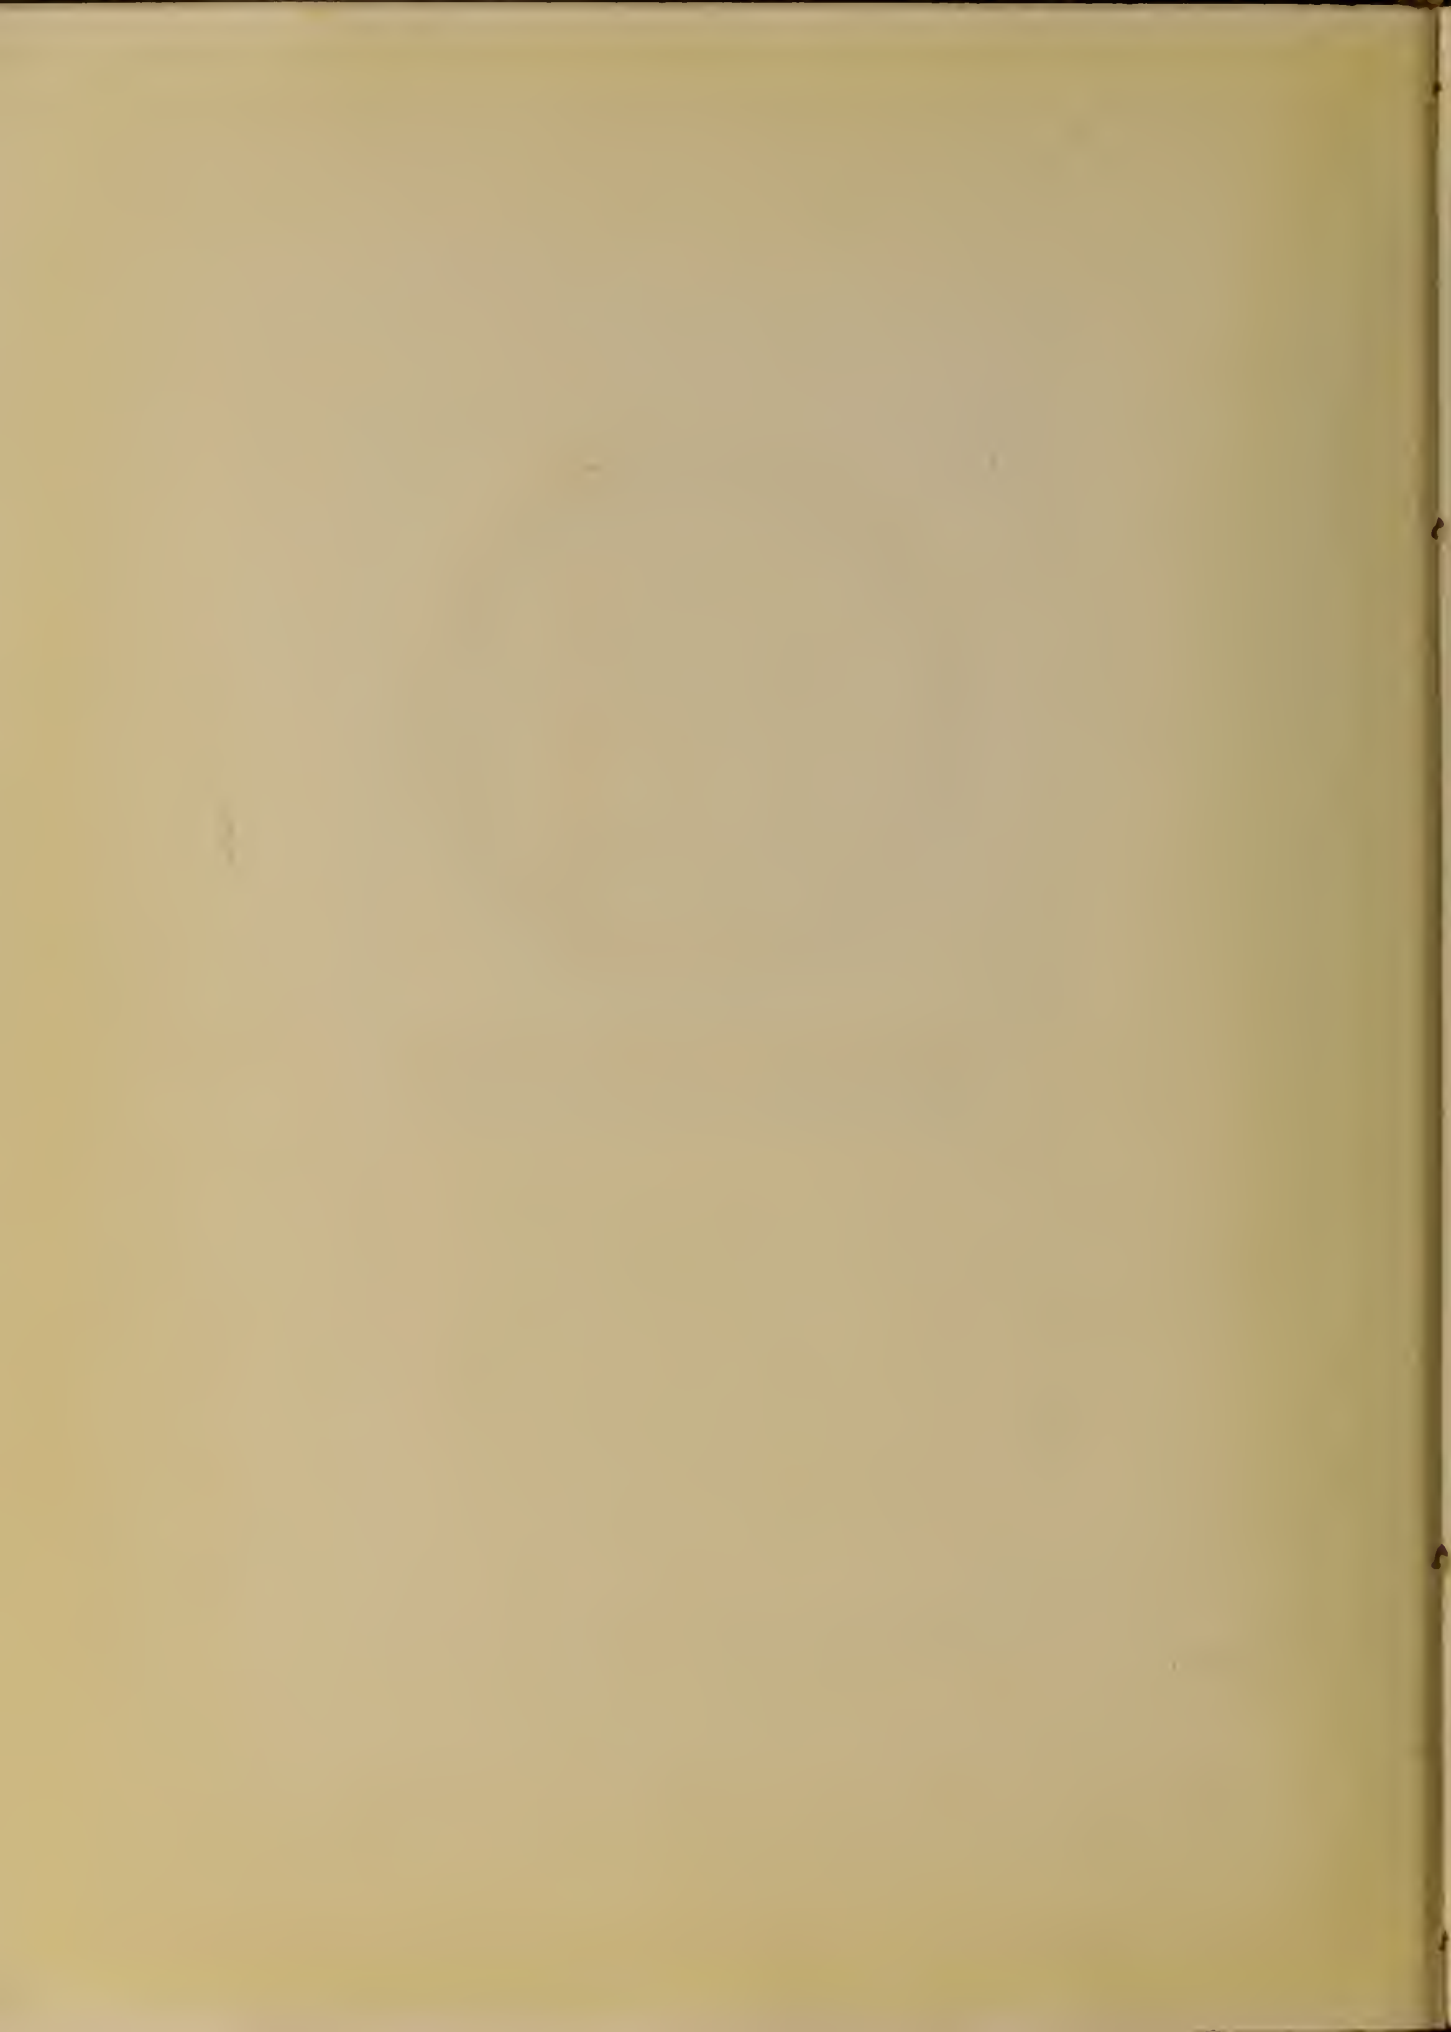

DEDICATION

To

FRANCIS GARY FOURNET

Master of Science

Whose occupancy of the positions of teacher of physics and supervisor of credits has made him known and loved by all—whose lively interest in all phases of college work has been directed toward the upbuilding of the institution, we respectfully dedicate this issue of THE POTPOURRI.

BRIEF.

The students should be given unsupervised control of Current Sauce.

MAIN ISSUES

- I. Do students own Current Sauce?
- II. Should Current Sauce be issued as college advertising matter?
- III. Can college students be depended on to use discretion in publication?

PROOF ON NEGATIVE SIDE

Students should not be given unsupervised control of Current Sauce, for

- I. Students do not own Current Sauce, for
 - A. They merely pay for their subscription.
(Refutation)
 - B. Even if they do feel that they own Current Sauce, a privilege is no longer a privilege but becomes a menace when it injures that for which it was granted.
- II. Current Sauce should be used for advertising matter for the college, for
 - A. The college is judged by its student publication, for,
 1. The public learns of its activities and organizations in this manner.
 2. It is an example of the students' ability in practical work.
 - B. It is the most enticing means of creating an interest in the school, for
 1. It appeals to the humorous and social as well as the intellectual side.
(Refutation)
 - C. Although it is argued that the public will think less of the school and the students' ability when they do not publish the paper without supervision, this is a weak argument, for
 1. Supervision is necessary for distinctive style.
 2. There is little technical instruction in journalism.
 3. Practical work is the most effective method of instruction, for
 - a. Solutions can be found for real problems instead of imaginary ones.
 4. We accept with gratitude assistance and supervision in other new fields of endeavor. Why not in this?
- III. College students can not be relied upon to use discretion in publication, for
 - A. The staff is too transient for every member to be capable of doing the type of work desired, for
 1. Personal likes and dislikes enter into the selection.
 2. Lack of familiarity with the student body on the part of the present staff prevents a wise selection.
 - B. Although they may be mature, they lack the practical knowledge for such work.
 - C. It takes intensive and extensive supervised training to make a successful editor.
(Refutation)
 - D. It may be argued that the faculty supervisor is a foggy; but it is a weak argument, for
 1. It does not prove that students should not have supervision.
 2. It does not prove that the paper would be better without a supervisor than it would be with a broader-minded individual to supervise the work.
 3. A capable supervisor is much more easily selected from the faculty than a capable student from the student body.

CONCLUSION

- I. Since the students do not own Current Sauce, but merely subscribe to it;
- II. Since the Current Sauce should be used as college advertising matter, and hence should be used in the most attractive form and should contain the most interesting and instructive subject matter;
- III. Since college students can not be depended on to use discretion in publication; therefore students should not be given unsupervised control of Current Sauce.

—IVA MAE PIERCE.

ZELDA ALLEN . . . Natchitoches
Math. - Phy. Sci.

Secretary Math. Science Club.
 Blessed with an enviable evenness of temperament, Zelda can say, "Why, no, I have a date tonight," with the same graciousness that she uses in a scholarly book report or thoughtful recitation. She declares her marvel is not natural, yet nobody ever saw it looking dragged in the rainy season. She's one of that small band who make so little noise that everyone expects twice too much work from them.

EVELYN BYRD . . . Natchitoches
Math. - Soc. Sci.

Class Editor for Potpourri.
 She will always be remembered because of her ready smile in greeting. The class of 1924 wish for you, Evelyn, success in your chosen profession, and later in life your heart's desire, a little home in the mountains of Virginia with the man of your choice!

LETHA GIBSON . . . Harrisonburg
Math. - Science

Clique-Claque, E. L. S., Vice-Pres. of Y. W. C. A.
 Directness of manner and of speech characterize this capable young woman. There are not many girls that have no "line" and manage to interest men; Letha tells the whole business what she thinks and gets by with it. Her sincerity of purpose as well as her determination make Letha a valuable student and insure her success in teaching or whatever life work she undertakes.

J. D. HAND . . . Coshatta
English - Soc. Sci.

Captain Football and Track Team, E. L. S., Oration, Y. M. C. A.
 Ambition, coupled with innate capacity for hard work, lends success to his every effort. The only failure known in John Dee's record was in his combat with Cupid, in which he became the victim of little Dan's skillful archery.

T. GORDON HUGHES, Natchitoches
English - History

S. A. K., Clique-Claque, Y. M. C. A. Cabinet, Class Vice-Pres.
 T. G. is an inveterate arguer and an optimist in spite of it. Never failing to question a point if at all possible, he never forgets the final decision in regard to that fact—a truly great asset for a business man. The Normal College counts him one of its most valuable friends and expects great things of him.

CATHERINE JONES . . . Mansfield
Math. - English

E. L. S., Clique-Claque, Honor Council Chairman, Faculty Rep.
 "Go ask Miss Jones—she can tell you," is frequently heard hereabouts. Nobody entertains the least doubt of her ability to answer all reasonable and some unreasonable questions, in the correctest and most approved manner. A sense of humor and a hearty laugh makes her a jolly companion.

JOHNNIE MANNING . Natchitoches

Math - Science

Math.-Science Club, President, Student Body Cheerleader, Potpourri Business Manager.

Isn't it obvious from the very angle of his mortar-board that Johnny is individual? Yet he does not let his special variety of blonde handsomeness interfere with his work, for above all things, he is a good student. A leading spirit in the Glee Club, the Orchestra, Y. M. C. A., Potpourri, and the cheering squad, he has given his time and energy for the student body, and the lasting good of L. S. N. C.

G. W. MCGINTY

Math. - Soc. Sci.

M. C. C. Parliamentarian, Math.-Science Club, Potpourri Staff, Business Manager of Current Sauce.

A pile of notebooks, a haughty smile, and a hustling walk—that's McGinty! He's too busy with classes and such college activities to bother much with girls, but he does love to argue with them in business. It has been said, on doubtful authority, however, that he has rubbed up against Main walls at noon a few times, in just as practiced fashion as any Normal man.

MRS. GEORGE MOFFETT . Gandy

Music - English

Editor-in-Chief of Current Sauce, Orchestra, Glee Club, and Choral Society.

This versatile lady can warble a ditty or wash a dish, hold forth on a deep sociological problem or render a Chopin selection, perform Shakespeare scenes, or manage a husband. She does them all well and caps the climax by editing Current Sauce. "Artie" is a general favorite, with her capability and good looks.

ELMIRA MONTGOMERY . . Delhi

English - Soc. Sci.

Clique-Claque and Y. W. C. A.

A straightforward method of attack of all problems she meets, and an indomitable spirit of courage are hers. She has a genius for discussion and an astonishing way of getting good results where most people despair of getting any. With all her busyness, "Miss Montgomery" finds time to be very popular with her friends.

CLARA O'QUINN . . Natchitoches

English - Soc. Sci.

Clique-Claque.

Clara has the readiest, cheeriest grin imaginable and a nonchalant way of driving up in her Fo'd just as the last bell rings! Although she can be frivolous, her grades show that she has many serious thoughts. Clara is living in a jazz age, but nothing hurries or worries her at all, neither has she bobbed hair.

VIOLET PERRY Ida

English - Soc. Sci.

Y. W. C. A. Cabinet, Clique-Claque President.

Unselfishness is Violet's besetting sin. She seems upon first acquaintance too quiet and studious for her own good; those who know her find that she is strikingly clever. A combination of an earnest way of tackling any thing, and a shy, twinkly-eyed smile has endeared Violet to her associates.

IVA MAE PIERCE . . Marthaville
English - Soc. Sci.

M. C. C., Dramatic Club, Y. W. C.
 A., Clique-Claque, Class Secretary,
 Vice-President.

She acknowledges gratefully numerous exclamations of "Oh, excuse me, I thought you were a freshman!" and turns around to write a term paper or sell Hershey-bars for Y. W. — either with an ease or efficiency no Ph. D. could achieve.

PERCY O. ROBERTSON . . Pelican
Math. - Science

Vice-Pres. of Math.-Science Club,
 Pres. of Y. M. C. A., Vice-Pres. of Class, Current Sauce Staff, Glee Club, Choral Society, Business Manager of Dramatic Club.

"Post-Office," like his name, may count himself happy in the possession of a faculty of receiving good news or bad with equal indifference. No temper, good stage-presence, and graceful manners—no wonder he is very much run after by the flapper contingent!

MRS. L. ROYSTON . Natchitoches
Rural Education

Critic of Rural Life Club.

Nothing daunts this big-hearted, energetic lady in her pursuit of knowledge or acquisition of friends. She can always find a joke, no matter how serious the professor, nor does she hesitate, on account of said prof. to laugh her incorrigible laugh. She can get "perfectly furious, my dear!" with equal disregard of person and place.

FRED J. RUSHING . . Mangham
Rural Education

E. L. S., Clique-Claque, Pres. of
 Y. M. C. A., Glee Club.

Did you ever hear him sing, "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot" with the Gliklub? He's the best college boy and jolly good fellow you can picture. He is a regular dud and a fine family man.

MARGUERITE STEWART,
 Natchitoches

Math. - Science

Choral Society, Editorial Editor for Current Sauce.

Clothes are not her sole passion—"Uncle Jack," Browning, Lucille's babies, and Hugh Walpole are a few besides. Lady Luck loves Marguerite, for she can lose her kerchief or her beloved Ford, and either will come back none the worse for wear.

RUTH VERNON . . Chesbrough
English - Soc. Sci.

Class President, Pres. of Clique-
 Claque, Editor-in-Chief of Potpourri, Current Sauce Staff, Intercollegiate Debate, Y. W. C. A.
 Faculty Representative.

Ruth is addicted to hard words, but not hopelessly, because she is just as fond of play; in which respect she is the biggest little paradox at Normal. Big, brown eyes, blonde bob, and piquant face make her one of the most attractive persons to look upon.

MRS. H. J. SUDBURY, Natchitoches

Home Economics

Another one of the versatile, home-sisterhood is Mrs. Sudbury. She is a genius at farming, home-ee, mother-ing, and keeping up with Professor "Husband." Neither her cool white frocks nor her calm disposition are ever the least bit rumpled, even after a hard day in lab. What an efficient and pleasing teacher she could be, if her sphere of life were not already chosen!

JEANETTE WEMP . . Natchitoches

English - Soc. Sci.

Class President, Dramatic Club.

She is dignity itself as Senior President and continually suffers from conscientiousness, but she is a human joy on the gym floor. Daintiness and grace embodied. Jean wins admiration from everyone in everything she does. Prefacing her sage remarks with "But, Dr. Hazzard, don't you think-a-?" Jean takes the hardest English classes with seeming ease. She keeps herself sylph-ish and shadowlike with constant overwork.

WALTER S. MITCHELL . . Many

English - Soc. Sci.

President Student Council, '24.

He is even more level-headed than he looks. See Senior writ large across his massive brow? Although he tends to take life too seriously, he never lacks a large circle of friends. The latter say he is wise and dignified; certainly, Normal faculty agree to say amen to that, because his record sheet is a forest of "A's."

MR. ROY: "Why so late, Mr. Prather?"

MR. PRATHER: "Last night my wife presented me with a boy."

MR. ROYS "She'd have done better to have presented you with an alarm clock."

MR. PRATHER: "I rather fancy she has, sir."

To An Assembly-Cutter.

(With apologies to William C. Bryant.)

Whither with books galore,
On tip-toe across creaking floor,
Far down the hall dost thou pursue
Thy solitary way?

Vainly the searching eye
Might mark thy distant flight and on thee spy,
As darkly painted down the hall,
Thy figure floats along.

Seekest thou a room where noises cease,
And thou canst study there in quiet and peace,
Or "Coopers" just beyond the Normal gate
Where sandwiches and steaming coffee wait?

There is a Power whose care,
Teaches thy way up two flights of stair
Where thou shouldst let thy weary foot steps lead
Lone wandering, but not lost.

Thy brain hath worked at deep things all the day,
Hard laboring on thy part to make an "A"
Yet stoop not to temptation waiting there,
Beyond the portals at the hall's long end.

Up stairs is one who leads in lusty song,
So urge thy lagging steps and join the throng,
And scream among thy fellows; soon shall end,
Thy day of toil and thou canst claim thy rest.

Thou'rt gone! The abyss of stairs,
Hath swallowed up thy form beset with cares.
Deeply hath sunk the lessons that are given,
And shall not soon depart.

He who stands at the stairway's height,
And guides the student in uncertain flight,
In the way up that thou must tread alone,
Will lead thy steps aright.

The Physical Changes that Take Place during the Adolescent Period.

Since education is based largely on physical traits, and since physical traits largely determine conduct, it is very necessary that we, as prospective teachers, know what physical changes take place at certain periods of growth, especially during adolescence. It is important that we know the nature of these changes because, as it is well known, the better we understand the physical traits, the more thoroughly will we understand the individuals with whom we have to deal. By gaining such a knowledge we can all the better render service to society and humanity.

The period of adolescence is one marked by many vital changes in the individual. Growth during this period is of special significance, because it is then that one undergoes the changes that largely determine his future development. It is during this stage that the youth forms the habits and ideals that so profoundly influence his later life.

The changes that take place during adolescence are, of course, mental and moral as well as physical, but I shall deal only with the physical.

The outward appearances of the adolescent are very significant. Boys and girls, but especially boys, become very awkward, this being the result of the nature of the increase of the muscles and bones which grow lengthwise and out of proportion before they begin to fill out. Awkwardness may be noticed in the way the boy runs, plays, and acts.

There are numerous internal evidences also of the appearance of this stage. The development of the heart and arteries is significant. The heart muscles increase greatly in size and in number of contractible fibres, so that the volume of this organ is radically increased in proportion to the lumen of the arteries through which it forces blood.

Alternation in voice is one of the most obvious and characteristic symptoms of this period. The face likewise undergoes an important change, lengthening and broadening noticeably. The brain increases little in weight but grows immensely in power. The change in the lungs appears in the increased volume. The air sacs become longer; hence much more air is taken in.

Adolescence, then, is a period of intensification of all growth processes, the period of transition to physical maturity. As termed by Inglis, "It is the flood tide of development." These changes account for the new instinctive tendencies and new emotional experiences which come to occupy the center of the psychic stage and so largely dominate the conduct of the adolescent.

The Schools and Democracy

The future of America and of the world depends upon the schools of to-day. Civilization beckons to the public schools to carry her beacon light higher and higher in the steady march of humanity. Each true, loyal American looks forward to the little red schoolhouse on the hill to instil the highest and loftiest sentiments of patriotism into the hearts of "Young America."

To-day no other nation in the world has free schools that are common to all classes of children, rich and poor, high and low. Our common schools are not merely for the people, but they are of the people and by the people. The spirit of Democracy issued her call, and to-day our schools are absolutely necessary to the preservation and growth of our free institutions. They are the best friends of the children of the poor; they have been the main prevention of classes and castes in American society by leveling up instead of leveling down. The common schools are the safe-guards of freedom and the true nurseries of intelligent patriotism. They are the great means of assimilating our vast foreign population and teaching these children to love the country of their adoption. It is in the school that American Democracy finds its most complete expression. In this great institution the people of every race and creed and station in life meet on common ground and clasp hands in a united purpose.

America needs for the future a big, forward-looking educational program. The doctrine of peace and good citizenship must be instilled into the hearts of the future manhood and womanhood of America. In this way only will the ideals of a peaceful humanity and a prosperous civilization be attained. The schools must teach Democracy. After all, what is Democracy? It is essentially a religious idea!—"Thou shalt love the Lord thy God; thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." One would be compelled to go a long distance to find a better expression of our Democratic faith. Love spells Democracy, and Love at bottom is Freedom.

Fellow classmates, we are soon to become a part of the great teaching force of America. Upon our shoulders will rest the responsibility of making the schools of this great nation what they should be—outstanding Democratic institutions for the moulding of the minds and hearts of the future leaders of our commonwealth.

May we teach the inspiration of true Democracy, and may we be able to instil this ideal into the lives of the boys and girls who come under our supervision.

Common Sense

Often when I hear people speak of "good old common sense," I can not help thinking of the student who, receiving her grade slips (consisting mostly of "D's" and "E's"), invariably announces to the world, "Well, maybe I haven't got much book sense, but I sure have got lots of good old common sense." This same student will also hold forth in this fashion: "I never study. If I did, I guess I could pass straight 'A' too."

It is unfortunate that common sense is given such a meaning. It is a splendid thing if taken in its broadest significance, but as defined by many students, common sense is an ability to "get by," to appreciate jazz, to be a good dancer, and to scorn anything that pertains to study or to "high-brow stuff."

Again, it is the opinion of some that common sense denotes only skill in cooking, sewing, and other manual arts. In short, this term as used by most people has led one to think, "If that's common sense, thank Heavens I haven't any."

Common sense, to my mind, signifies not one ability, or a few abilities, but an all-round ability as regards affairs of the everyday world. The individual with common sense knows how to fit into every situation with tact and understanding, can act quickly in an emergency, think clearly and concisely, can interest himself in other people's interests, and converse intelligently. He must have a clear knowledge of the practical things of life.

Common sense is a necessary and very valuable acquisition. No matter whether one be a teacher, lawyer, poet, merchant, or just an everyday laborer, he will have need of common sense in order to fit his place in the world.

But one must not get the idea that common sense is the only thing worth having. The ability to live in an imaginative world as well as in a practical, everyday one is equally important if not more so. Common sense should supplement, not take the place of this ability. Dreamers and idealists have often proved to be some of the greatest types of individuals the world has produced. Practical idealists, individuals who possess a combination of the idealistic and practical, of common sense and the rather different type of sense characteristic of the dreamer, are greatly in need. Let us strive for common sense, but let us first of all know of what the thing for which we are striving consists.

America, the Torchbearer of Civilization.

Seven years ago, amidst scenes of horror and chaos, there was rung from the soul of a hero these words:

"To you from failing hands
We throw a torch.
Be yours to bear it high!
If ye break faith with those who die
We shall not sleep, tho' poppies blow
In Flanders Field!"

You know what the response to this challenge was. Today America is hearing and must answer a similar yet infinitely greater call. Down the centuries, from civilizations long decayed, rings the echo of the same words.

It is the command of the ancient Egyptians, whose torch of civilization, held aloft in pride and grandeur, once illuminated the world's horizon; it is a plea of the Chaldeans, whose torch in former days flamed so brightly, only to flicker and burn no more; it is a cry, too, from the Greeks, whose glory it was once to raise on high a gleaming torch whose scintillating rays penetrated the far corners of the globe.

One hears more plainly the plea from the peoples of Western Europe, whose torch today, sputtering and flickering feebly, threatens to be forever extinguished.

The Spirit of America, the Soul of a people, will not allow this challenge to go unanswered, nor will it fail to guard well that which has been entrusted to her.

That this Flame, the sacred heritage of a mighty nation, may be perpetuated, America must do three things. She must be a leader in world peace; she must maintain the highest education system; and she must be the shrine of the Christian religion, from whence the Gospel of Christ shall be carried to the uttermost parts of the earth.

Expressing his faith in America, Woodrow Wilson said, "It is my dream that as the years go on and the world knows more and more of America, it will drink at the fountain of independence and liberty in America and be renewed; that it also will turn to America for those moral inspirations which lie at the base of all freedom; and that America will come into the full light of day when all shall know that she puts human rights above all other rights and that her flag is not only the flag of America, but of humanity.

"I do not know that there will ever be a declaration of independence of mankind, but I believe if any such document is drawn up that it will be in the spirit of the American Declaration of independence and that America has lifted high the light which will shine unto all generations and guide the feet of mankind to the goal of justice and liberty and peace."

The Last Stage of Evolution

The finding of King Tutankhamen's tomb has brought us back to the days of three thousand years ago. We gaze at the old king's possessions and marvel that these wonderfully preserved relics correspond in so many ways to the various articles of modern times. A bond has been formed between us and the old king who lived ages ago, because we are able partly to understand the sentiments and desires that were similar to ours.

The rapid advance of scientific exploration and discovery up to this time has not revolutionized the entire world. Not enough has happened as yet to sever the common understanding and feelings that we share with our less enlightened ancestors.

Now is the time that I wish to confront you with a problem which has been the source of much worry and pondering on my part. Why will men of today devote their time in excavating old tombs that after all have not such a tremendous effect upon the advancement of the race? Why do they not devote their time in shaping the channels of the future evolution of man? Do they not see the disastrous end that he is destined to reach?

Consider yourself an unearthed mummy three thousand years from now. The change that would greet you would be far greater than found by King "Tut" on his return to the world today. The citizen of 4923 will have exhausted the source of scientific lore. There will be little left of interest to discover. He will have reached what the inventor calls the end of everything. His legs, from constant non-usage, will have begun the process of withering to mere appendages. He will have no incentive to walk, because there will be machines of all kinds to convey him wherever he wishes to go. There will be moving side-walks awaiting but the command of the pedestrian to take him to his destination. The general use of hands will have passed out of custom, because self-starting electrical machines will do all work. When one wishes to see an object miles away, he will select from his assortment of optical instruments the lens adjusted to that range. He will by this time have so mastered the control of sound waves that he will be able to communicate with persons on the other side of the earth. This will be done by the ear without any aid of instruments. Food will be taken in such concentrated form that meals will have been abolished. The experiment in prolonging life will have been perfected, and the span of existence will have been greatly increased. He will never be subject to fatigue, as scientists even now are beginning to discover methods for banishing the tired feeling. Life then will contain no surprises and will be uninteresting because there will literally be "nothing new under the sun." Compressed air will be available, and man will be able to sail in a special aeroplane to other planets.

He will visit different parts of the universe and will no longer delight in wondering whether life exists on the various planets, for he will already be in full possession of all this knowledge.

Consider, then, the future citizen of 4923 and judge for yourself whether the problem of the future evolution is not more important than delving into the long-forgotten past. Could not science accomplish better results, if instead of desperately trying to convince man that he sprang from the ape, it devoted its attention to the modification and outcome of the last stage of evolution?

The Satin Slipper

Cotter's Ball was to be Saturday night, and everyone was going—everyone who had been fortunate enough to receive an invitation. "Surely someone will buy me!" exclaimed the little satin slipper, from its seat on a bronze stand among the other shoes in the show window of Brickman's Shoe Store. It had sat there all last season and while satin had been the height of fashion. It still sat there this season, and satin was still being worn. All of the other shoes in the show window had been sold and replaced many times by others, but the little satin slipper remained. Everyone admired it, but no one bought it. Why wouldn't some one buy it?

"It can't be my price," wept the satin slipper, "because I'm cheaper than lots of my friends who were sold last season. I'm a number three, and today all the ladies wear number three's. Whoever heard of a satin slipper getting gray hair in a show window?—What a disgrace! Oh, the joy and the pride of being worn, of actually containing a foot with toes, real live ones!"

At ten o'clock the mayor's wife, while passing Brickman's, stopped and looked at the display of shoes. "Just the thing!" she exclaimed pointing to the little slipper. Then she entered the store.

"At last, at last," shouted the satin slipper, "I'm to be bought, to have a home, to be worn, to be put to some use. I've had to wait all this time so that I might belong to Pepper Center's most popular woman. I see it all now—everything comes to those who wait." Fifteen minutes had gone by. The mayor's wife came out of the store with a box of shoes. Oh, the crushed hopes and the shattered dream of the satin slipper!

The week-end passed, and the little slipper remained, but Monday brought everyone back to work. "Re-arrange that show window, Pat," commanded the manager of Brickman's Shoe Store. A half hour passed and the process of fixing the window display began. The satin slipper was carelessly thrown upon the counter.

"Throw this in the trash can," said Pat, handing the little satin slipper to the janitor. And in two minutes the little slipper lay in the garbage can. It wept and wept, but no one could help it; it had met its unpreventable doom. The little satin slipper never knew that the reason for all its misery was the lack of a mate; it was only a sample slipper.

"The purpose of this Association shall be to associate young women in personal loyalty to Jesus Christ as Saviour and Lord; to promote growth in Christian character and service through physical, social, mental and spiritual training; and to become a social force for the extension of the Kingdom of God."

The Y. W. C. A. of the Louisiana State Normal College grew out of a small band of Christian workers who found such pleasure in devotional services that they persevered until inspiration and guidance in the form of an efficient and faithful leader came to direct their course. This leader, Miss Dean Varnado, has continued to encourage and help those and other girls in their constant efforts to make the organization a power in its work for Christ until it has now more than three hundred active members.

It ranks first among the Y. W. C. A.'s of the colleges and universities in the state in its activities.

This year the Y. W. C. A. has done much to improve conditions on the campus, and to give the students a deeper insight into the meaning of Christian service as well as a broader view upon life and its problems. Bible Study classes have been organized, Morning Watch is held daily, and weekly prayer meetings are conducted in each of the dormitories. The organization sent four delegates to the Student Volunteer Convention held in Indianapolis. It will have four delegates in the Blue Ridge annual Y. W. C. A. convention for the regular course and one to remain the entire summer. All worthy causes have been supported loyally by the entire group of girls.

One of its most interesting activities is that of supporting little Clara Hyde of the Ruston Orphanage, whom the Y. W. C. A. has adopted.

The Apostleship of Prayer was founded at Vals, in France, on December 3, 1844, by Rev. Francis Gautrelet. It was first extended to cultivate an apostolic spirit in the young Jesuit students who were then preparing for the Missions. Extended by them to the villages, hospitals, and other institutions in that neighborhood, it soon spread throughout France and shortly after propagated in other European countries and in the foreign missions, whither the young men were sent.

The congregation of Bishops and Regulars approved the statutes of the association in 1866, from which year may be dated the rapid growth in this country. At present there are over seventy thousand Local Centres in every part of the world aggregated to the Apostleship of Prayer. There are eight thousand Centres in the United States.

"The Messenger of the Sacred Heart," a monthly magazine, is published in several languages and circulated throughout the world. Another means of keeping up the active communication among all members and directors is through the "League Leaflets" which are also monthly issues.

The Apostleship of Prayer is a league constituted by a union of groups of the faithful in every part of the world, whose membership pray and work together with Christ as their head and the source of their zeal and devotion in order to continue the mission which He gave to the Apostles, of promoting the glory of God and the welfare of souls. It is based on the following principles found in the Scriptures:

1. Prayer is the chief means by which God wishes us to cooperate with Him in saving and sanctifying souls.—1 Tim. 11-1.

2. Prayer, always useful for salvation, is most fruitful when made in common with others.—St. Matthew 18, 19, 20.

3. Prayer is most certain of its object when constant and persevering.

—St. Luke 18, 1-7.

4. Prayer is most acceptable to God when it is sincere and recommended by our good works.—St. Matthew 8:21.

The aim of the Association is properly termed by its statutes, universal—that is, one that every Catholic can and should strive for, one that embraces every other good object, and one that can be attained in some measure by every good work accomplished.

The means employed to attain this object are, in general, prayer, whether mental or vocal, and good works of all kinds offered in union with the Heart of Christ our Lord.

Fundamental and Distinctive Principles

1. To bring every student to face for his character and his career the full claims of Jesus Christ as Saviour and Lord.
2. To assist in developing the loyalty of students to the Church by urging them to join the local church of their preference and to participate regularly in service and worship.
3. To create a college consciousness favorable to a vital and reasonable faith.
4. To recognize and utilize this college consciousness in a way not unlike its utilization in social life, athletics, and other activities.
5. To offer the fullest opportunities for the expression of undergraduate initiative and control.
6. To make possible in the most effective manner the influence of all Christian students on all the non-Christian and indifferent students.
7. To afford a natural meeting place for all Christian faculty men of the college for religious work with all the students.
8. To reach most naturally and vitally our friends who come as students from other lands.
9. To afford the benefits which come from organic union with similar bodies of students in other colleges throughout the country and with the World's Student Christian Federation.
10. To represent a thoroughly interdenominational spirit and to train men of all denominations to work together.
1. To maintain the help of influential Christian alumni who are members of the Church of Christ, through an advisory board, responsible to the students and loyal to the entire objective of the Association.
12. To inspire men to give up their whole lives to the propagation of the spirit of Jesus Christ in the solution of social problems and in the evangelization of the world.
13. To afford to Christian students the training given by summer conferences and other gatherings held each year.

"KURANT SASS" STUNT

Sass Staph Speak Soundly, Sing Sweetly; Students Smile

The supposed adviser for the Kurant Sass (you know whom we mean) but in reality only an endured evil, did his very best to make a speech in assembly on the very day the Kurant Sass Staph had charge.

He got no further than opening his mouth. Can one blame the students for rebelling openly, when the same mud-slinger had been thrust upon them so often before? Shakespeare was highly right when he said some have speakers thrust upon them.

In fact, the entire Staph had warned him that he was willfully endangering his life; but he was determined to go through with it, if it cost him his good looks, which it nearly did.

With such a miserable beginning we were afraid the program would fall through, but so well have the servants of the people performed their duty that loud, ringing, echoing, and furious applause broke the deadly noise as he vamoosed. A drill was given that would have been worthy of William G. McAdoo.

Mr. William Jennings Perro, (see Idiot Ral Paige), supreme flunky, introduced each member of the Staph in turn with an effective speech of presentation.

The grandest march of the season was enacted by the wise people who gave the program. There was little music besides the humming, whistling, singing, and talking of everybody in the auditorium, including the actors themselves who supposed to be giving a pantomime. Such a little thing as that made no difference, however.

After a chorus by the entire Staph, headed by Mufat, the latter made a speech. She didn't say anything that the reporter could take down, so if it is not remembered, you can't read it here.

Our illustrious Maggie talked on anything and everything from baseball to marbles. He is such a great athlete!

Songs, readings, and ditto were in turn given by the other members of the Staph.

The speeches were good because they were so bored, and the Sass

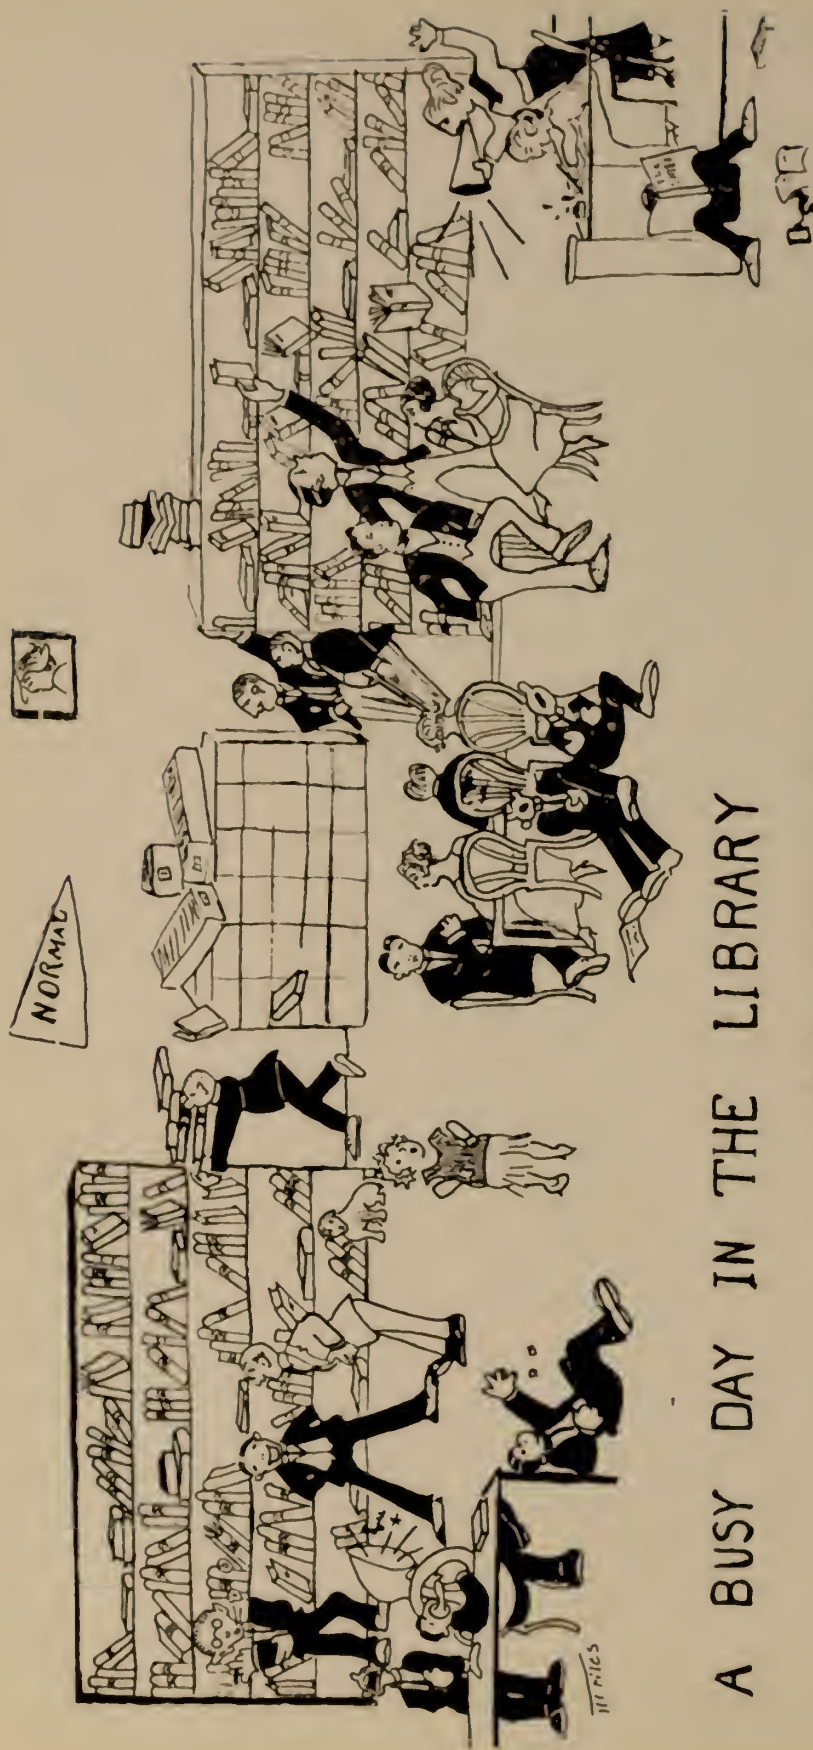

Staph acquitted themselves admirably and poorly.

The Sass Staph showed its efficiency during the last part of the program when it actually stirred up the news, brought in by the reporters, in a large pot and turned out a perfectly pink portion of Sass. All the students stood or sat with their mouths wide open while this marvelous feat was taking place. This method of producing an edition is a new discovery, and Kurant Sass has exclusive patents on the process. No doubt all the leading papers of the country will soon be clamoring for rights to produce their editions in this same manner.

The actors interpreted their parts awfully well. They laughed when they were supposed to be serious, but of course, that's all right.

Reporter has no more vocabulary; so the program was ended here.

Yours Truly,
X. Y. Z., Etc.

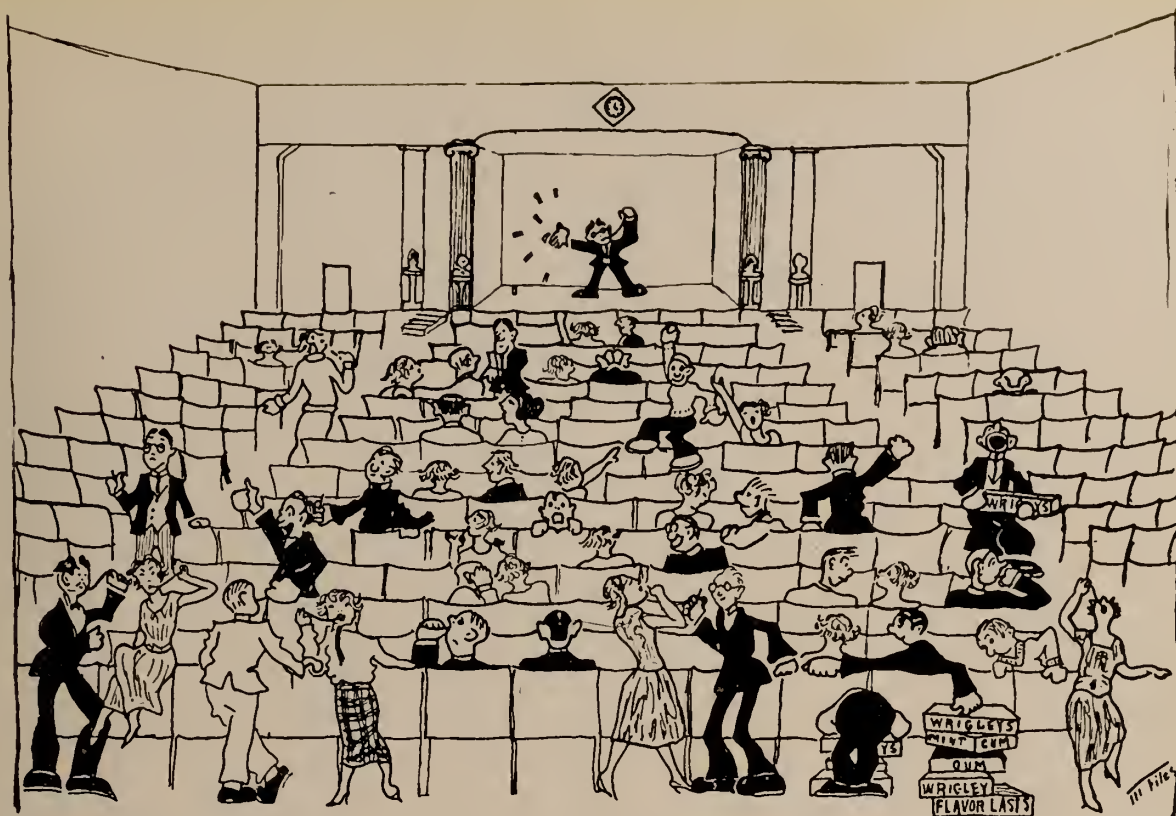

A BUSY DAY IN THE LIBRARY

NEW LIBRARY RULES

1. Our motto is "Noise and Pep." Live up to it.
2. Confide your troubles to the librarian; her sympathetic nature glories in such confidences.
3. When leaving the library, throw a kiss to those inside and then walk out, slamming the door loudly.
4. The best way to find a book is to knock all the others off until you come to the one you want.
5. All books must be left in the rain before returning to the library.
6. A fine of five dollars will be charged for anyone:
 - (a) Wearing rubber heels.
 - (b) Speaking in a tone lower than a shout.
 - (c) Studying in the library.

NORMAL STUDENTS ATTEND MOST WONDERFUL CONCERT

The social phase of life, so highly developed at Normal, manifested itself Saturday night in the attendance of the lyceum in Natchitoches which attracted much attention in all parts of the musical world.

Promptly at seven-thirty, limousines purred softly at the door of the Social Room, and young women of the College, beautifully attired in opera wraps, and escorted by handsome (?) Normal men, stepped inside and were driven to the magnificent opera house. The crowd was large but Normal students easily secured the Fifty Dollar Seats, as Mr. Roy had kindly reserved them beforehand.

The world famous "Rainbow Orchestra" played selections of startling classic beauty. Mr. Roy, with his characteristic love for certain kinds of music, requested the playing of "Beale Street Mamma," but it was not until Mr. Alexander vehemently seconded the request, that it was granted. Mr. Roy's desire for pep was such that he deliberately distributed, between numbers, slices of gum to the Normal Students, loudly authorizing them to "Chew it! We are from Normal, and we're here to show who we are."

At the close of the concert, students rode around a while to enjoy the night air and the moonlight. As dawn was breaking, they returned to the Hill, ready to begin a new day of Social activity.

STUDENTS GIVEN NEW LEASE ON LIFE — FACTS REVEALED

At a meeting of the entire student body at 6:22½, Tuesday morning, April 1, Mr. Roy presented the following rules:

(1) The library is to be used for Social Purposes only. Please do not expect to study there as the books are to be used as screens only.

(2) Students are asked to leave their lights burning in their rooms all day so that there will be plenty of light on all subjects.

(3) Girls are urged to take advantage of the many opportunities they have for car riding.

(4) Girls are urged to use the lower floor of Main for a Parking Station, where they may station their "Catch."

(5) Students are to pay no heed to the various bells but to arise and retire as the spirit moves them. Meals will be served any time requested.

(6) Students are especially urged to make their subjects subordinate to everything else and to concentrate on a good time.

(7) The baskets in the halls are not to be used as receptacles for gum wrappers, Hershey wrappers, etc. These are to be strewn in the halls and the baskets used for dunce stools.

(8) Students are asked to walk on the campus and keep off the sidewalks. The grass will grow back, but the sidewalks won't.

ASSEMBLY NOTES

Because of the students having to see the same old faces on the platform, Mr. Kyser was made the victim of their discourtesy on the third Wednesday of the fourth week. He chose for his subject, "Polygamy, its Shakespeare Relegation to the Psychical Colleges and Universities of the United States and Canada."

"I am here," he said, "because I can't help it. Some are born to be great, others achieve success, while some have duty thrust upon them. I am of the latter, and whereas my first public and psychic philological disappearance will cause no comment, except in your Sassy Paper, I want to congratulate you on your—words fail me—College Journal."

"The metonymy of this institution is vociferous in its praises. Its praise, like Cleopatra, comes from the lips of those that know him."

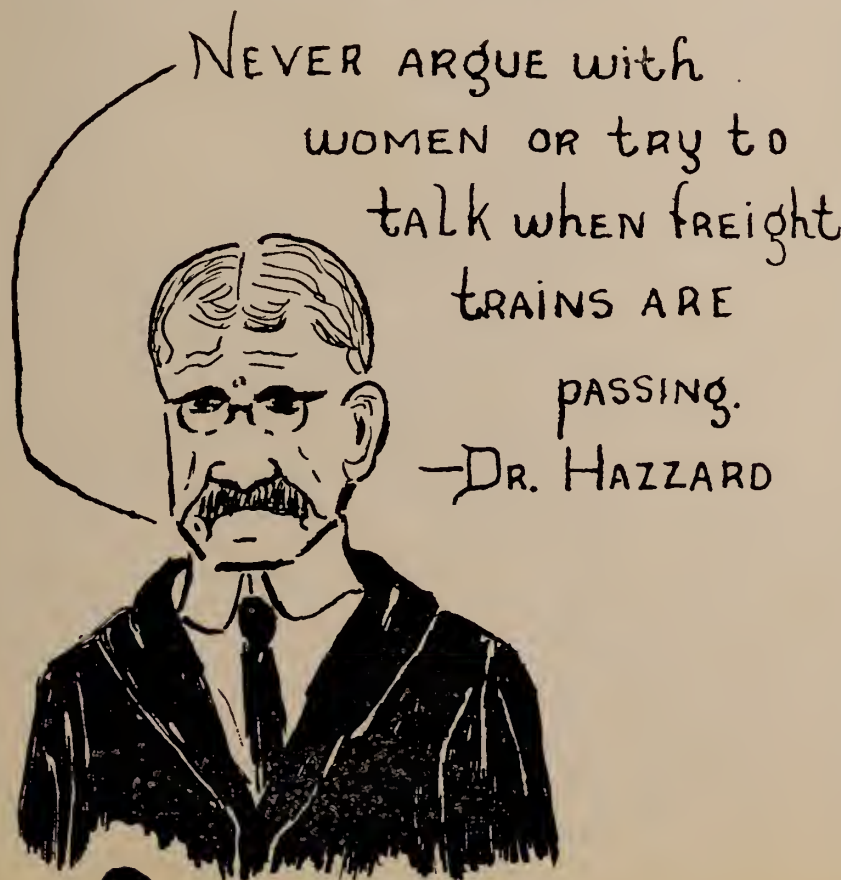

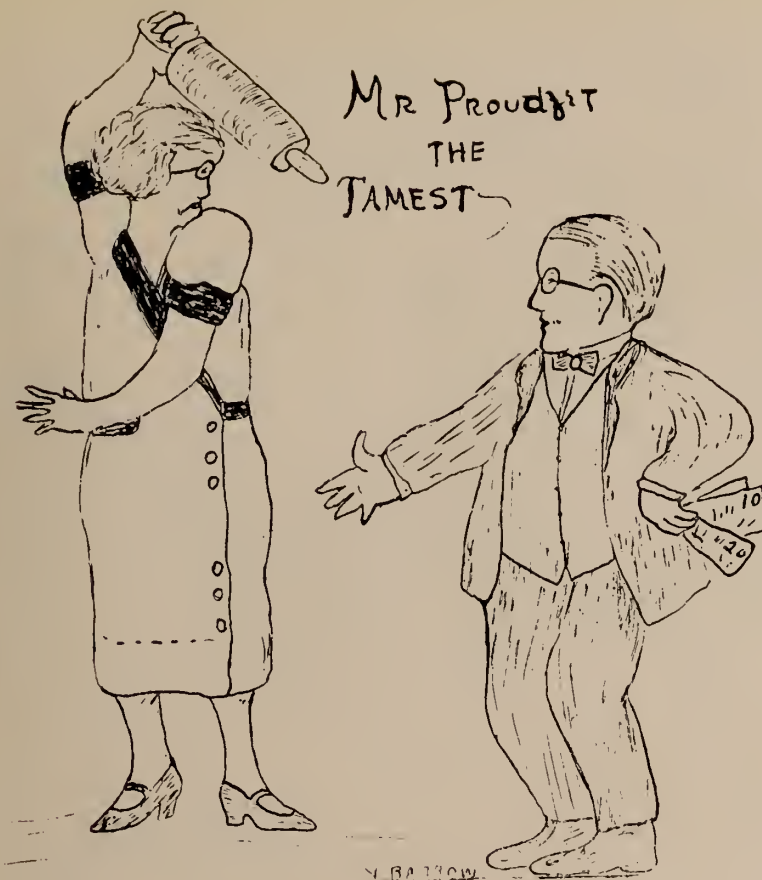

"Shakespeare was a brilliant fellow. Strange to say, he was English. I'm sure you are probably surprised at that; it is the latest statistics I assure you. Only recently have geologists, archaeologists, and anthropologists discovered that amusing fact. They unearthed a green mound, formerly taken as a mere heap of mud and sand, and found in it undisputed evidence that Shakespeare was English. They found the word 'jolly' written on every thing in the mound, and in addition discovered a walking stick, a pair of tweed trousers and walking boots, and a monocle. What could be more English, I ask you, than others of the same nature?"

"Canada lies to the north, northwest, and east, all depending on where you stand when you say it. It is a large country, usually red or yellow. United States is green, and so are all the people. The Canadians are descendants of Shakespeare while we are descendants of Columbus. That is why we sing a song entitled, 'Columbus got jammed in our Ocean.'"

"A College is a little university. It is relegated to a university but not so immense. In fact, the immensity is the one real difference between the two."

"When will the bell ring? I think you like to hear me so well that you bribed the janitor! But I refuse to talk more."

"I want only to summarize: Psychically and geographically, a social group is purely Canadian because it came from the indisputably English Shakespeare. The green Americans, as we are called, will soon progress to red, when new worlds are discovered. You have been kind to listen, and I know you have enjoyed my talk with the greatest of animosity; so I'll say 'you're welcome,' and retire gracefully."

SEN. DOWNS DELIVERS DASHING DOCUMENT

Islands' Immediate Independence Impresses Intelligent Instructor.

Washington, D. C., April 1. Headed by a Republican Insurgent of the Reed group, Senator M. E. Downs of Louisiana, formerly an instructor in the Louisiana State Normal College, a special Senate Committee began an investigation last Friday to ascertain why the Philippine Islands have so long been held in abject slavery by this highly civilized nation.

The inquiry, which is expected to rival the oil investigation, was ordered Friday after the delivery of a dashing document by Senator Downs, in which he insisted on immediate independence for the poor, down-trodden peoples of the Islands.

It is expected that on completion of the investigation Senator Downs will be appointed chief liberator by President Coolidge and will leave immediately for the islands where the coconuts and bananas grow. No doubt but that the name of Downs will go down in history as designating one of the outstanding figures of the world.

The following is the complete speech delivered by Sen. Downs before the Senate, which will be of interest to the Louisiana State Normal College students:

"Ladies and Gentlemen! It was with much deliberation that I decided to follow the course that made me the great outstanding figure in American Politics that I am today.

"Ladies and Gentlemen! Perhaps you do not know that I was once a great singer, the rival of Caruso. I have toured Central and Northern Louisiana and there became quite famous through the rendition of the song, "Yes, We Have No Bananas." While in the city of Natchitoches, the musical authorities of the Louisiana sub-Normal College were enraptured with my wonderful voice and—hired me on the spot. However, it was soon discovered that my political ability far surpassed my melodious singing qualities, and I was elevated to the Chair of Political Science and United States History especially that portion denoted as Old World Background. Fellow countrymen! This was indeed a great advancement; nevertheless I did not give up my Music; for on numerous occasions I was called upon to cheer the great sea of upturned faces by singing my old favorite, above mentioned, during Assembly period.

MR. ROPP FINDS A PONY. USEFUL IN HIS HIKING CLASS

FACULTY HOLDS AN IMPORTANT MEETING

Use of Pony Daringly Discussed by the Members; New Courses Considered.

A faculty meeting was held last Wednesday, and several important educational questions were taken up. One of these, "Should students use a Latin Pony?" was freely debated. Mr. Roy was of the opinion that a Ford would be more modern, and reminded the faculty that modern methods were best for the college. Mr. Prather remarked that there was no mention of a Latin Pony in the Constitution, and he didn't believe there was any such animal. When the question was put to Mr. McAfee he explained the origin of the word "pony," finally gave his decided opinion that a Latin pony would be of use for Latin, but for no other subject.

The whole matter was settled, however by Mr. Winstead, who, after a speech of some length in which he fully answered in a deprecating tone "Really, aw—I have a delicacy in articulating," Mr. Downs was of the opinion that the pony should be used theoretically but not practically. However, Mr. Ropp refused this by stating that he had always found a practical use for the pony in his hiking classes when students were weary with walking.

Mr. Roy scolded (although it is not his usual habit to scold) the faculty a little about the poor grades and hard examinations they were giving. They all promised faithfully to reform, however, and he forgave them.

After discussion of the new courses (see outline in this issue), the meeting was dissolved.

PROFESSORS HANSSLER AND McAFEE DEBATE

HANSSLER—McAFEE DEBATE

A very interesting debate was held on the second Monday of last week in the Normal Natatorium. The question rebated was:

Dissolve that the ab-Normal girls use more rouge than they do powder.

Professor Wilhemina Hanssler discussed the positive-affirmative side and Petty-gogue Lucius Olivia McAfee recussed the minus-negative side.

The most withstanding arguments advanced by Mr. McAfee were based upon facts given in minimum essentials. The speaker on the affurious side gave the most unconvincing arguments when he biased his statements on late Parisian society.

It was such a heated debate that the water on the brains of the faculty began to boil and this dignified mob, sitting on the front rows (as usual,) were repelled to retire to the rear and stand at the door with the freshies.

Those who were not asleep, dreaming, studying, or writing heard the following points on the affurious side:

"By chancing to glance at this benign assemblage of young ladies," said Mr. Hanssler, "and seeing the rosy hue of the complexity ya, ya, complexion I can not see how my misguided opposer could offer any indefinite points.

"Furthermore, from statistics gathered from the three drug stores in town the amount of rouge sold tripled the sum of powder sold.

"Here again who has ever heard Miss Feltus complain of the surplus amount of powder on the visage of the damsels, but the flaming red and orange has to be condemned."

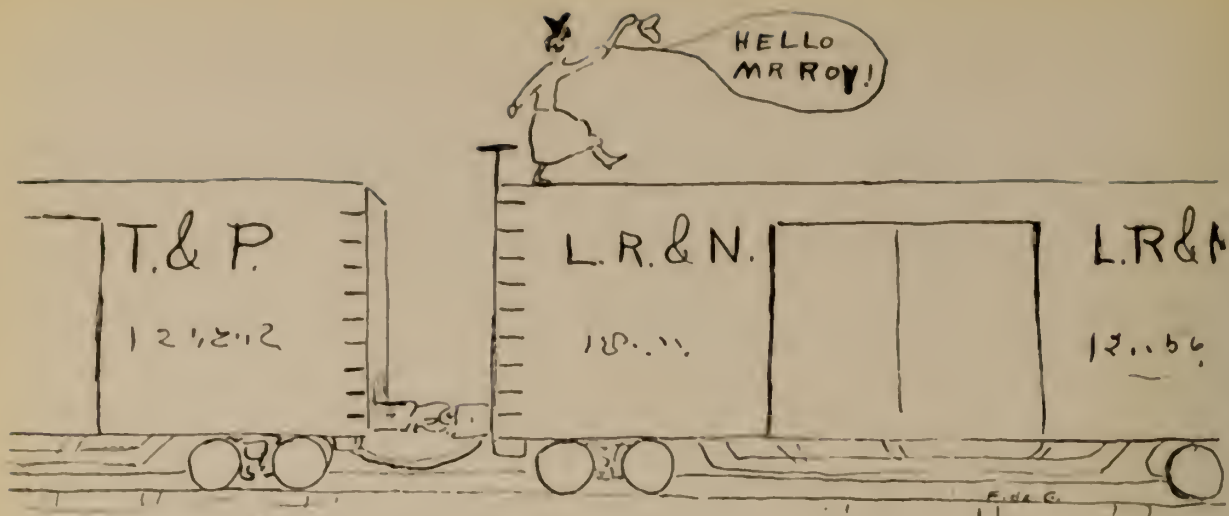

Professor McAfee rebukled in these words:

"Er, the other day I took, er, that is to say I saw some young local sheik take a young lady, er, back to the hill and a shower of rain chased them. When she arrived in Main she took out her, er, . . . Just what is it called? Oh! yes her de-vanity, looked at her sweet self and sighed "I still have a layer on! Luckily I had put three layers on!"

He also refuted Mr. Hanssler's drug store statistics by saying that according to the Laundry statistics they boiled the wash rags for three days and then allowed the water to evaporate er-er-er leaving a precipitate of powder large enough to whitewash all the trees on the campus.

He further stated that the matrons had complained to Mr. Roy that they could not recognize all of the girls with the powder wash-off.

Girls Are Given the Right to Paint Plentifully; the Real Purpose of College Presented.

Miss Martha Feltus, dean of girls and women, thus addressed them, Saturday:

I know as well as you do, that the girl who wears perpetual youth on her cheek in a flaming or orange-colored circle is the one who will get along in this world.

Say what you like or hear what you can't help, but keep this cardinal principle with you, and vigorously apply plenty of rouge. I admit that this will be more expensive, but success should never be counted as expensive. And I guarantee that success will follow the girl with rouge on her cheeks! I will hire a professional rouger to set up a shop in the Social Room of Model where the uninitiated may learn the art. Any of you Shreveport girls may apply.

"The next white principle to remember is powder. Every spot on your face that is not red or orange must be white. Put it on in layers; so that if misfortune should happen to one, you still have others to fall on. And that reminds me, if you fall, do it gracefully.

Wear all the jewelry you possess every day in the week. If you haven't enough, be sure to borrow from your neighbor. Her permission isn't a necessary factor if you know where she keeps it.

Now, I think Mr. Roy has already touched upon your social life, but I will say this. You need never ask my permission or see me about any thing you want to do, short of settling down with your husband on the campus! I am kept as a mere figure-head in this institution, as a means of quieting the tears and presentiments of over-anxious parents. This is the day when the people are in power, and it is up to you to do as you please.

If you desire to cook or curl your hair in your room, don't hesitate to use the electricity there at your disposal. You must not turn out your lights when you leave or when you go to bed, for nothing is so cheerless as a dark dormitory.

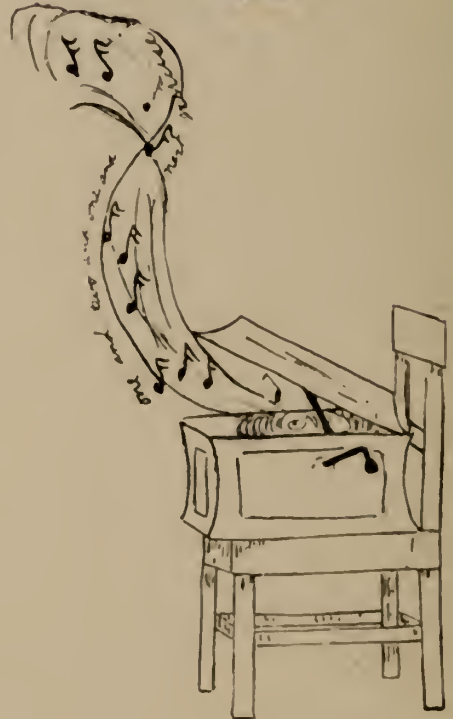

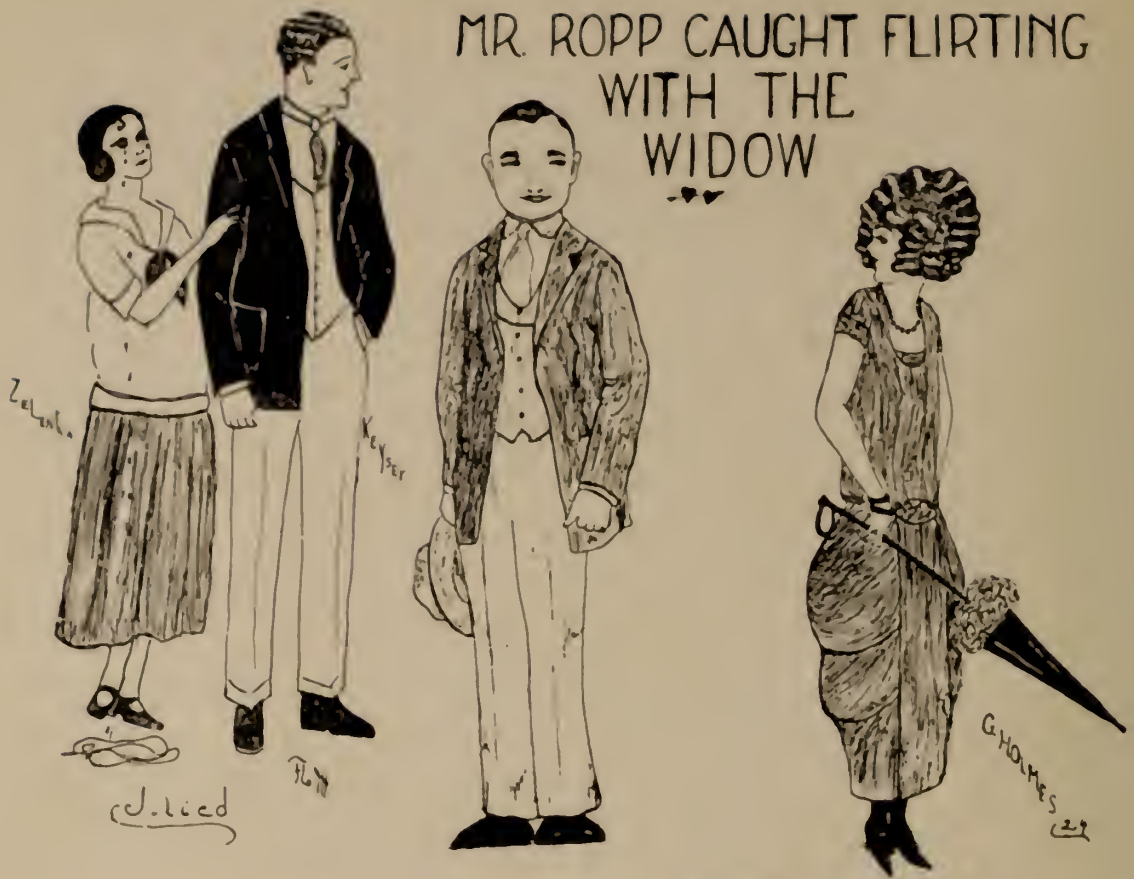

Wear silks and satins to school if you can afford it; and when you graduate, get the finest white dress New York or Paris can offer, for we are not graduating teachers, but brides in the main.

We don't want you to teach over three months after graduation. If you follow all the rules above with regard to rouge, powder, and jewelry, I promise you it won't be long until you will be led to the altar of happiness by some young man. I will gladly be your advertising agent if you'd like to buy a man, for I have nothing else to do.

There is nothing else I have to say, and the big thing I would like to leave with you today is that you do as you please entirely and always!"

Miss Feltus was given a large ovation, and the hall rang with the repeated bows that constituted her encores.

SERVICE

To maintain, unfailingly, a standard of quality that makes good—that is Service.
To maintain a fair and equitable price to all—that is Service. The management of any business is mirrored in the Service rendered. An organization which puts profit ahead of Service cannot endure.
